

Sample Color Palette

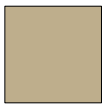

Selecting a paint color for a home can be a difficult challenge. There are thousands of colors to choose from and sample paint swatches are small. Buying numerous sample colors to test can be time consuming and expensive.

To assist Four Seasons homeowners in this process, a committee was assigned to select a palette of exterior house colors that represent Pacific Northwest earth-tone colors. Colors from current Four Seasons homes were considered as well as thousands of colors currently offered by each of the main national and regional paint manufactures including Sherwin-Williams, Miller, Behr, and Glidden.

Consideration was given to each color's hue, value, tint, shade and saturation. The committee selected earth-tone colors within brown, beige, green, taupe and gray. Within each group a light, medium and dark option was selected. A coordinated trim color is listed with each body color. Although the display in this color chart appears to have little variation, it is important to understand that even minor variations translate into significant differences on a large building and when paint colors are exposed to direct sunlight.

options, all colors represented below are from the Sherwin-Williams catalog. Color number links take you to the color's page on the Sherwin-Williams website, which provides color and code information that will allow any paint company to duplicate the color. The representation of the colors will vary from computer and print to the actual application on a house.

Additional Tips

Body & Trim Colors: Since all of the colors selected are earth tones, note that some of the body and trim colors are coordinated to be interchangeable.

Garage Doors: As stated in the Architectural Rules, garage doors are to be painted the same color as the house or trim. Other garage door colors may, however, be permitted if they have low contrast to the house body color. Both garage doors must be the same color.

Window Trim: When selecting window trim it is not necessary to paint surrounding window trim to match the color of the window frame (example: white vinyl window frames do not need white paint around the window trim). Doing so only results in accentuating high-contrast colors. Most manufacturers' vinyl and metal window frames will blend with the suggested trim colors.

These colors are examples of colors that fall within the approved Northwest natural, earth-tone colors. Residents may pick other colors, but any homeowner seeking approval to paint or stain their house with ANY color (including these sample colors) must seek approval from the Architectural Committee and must paint a three-foot by three-foot sample on the house, adjacent to the proposed trim color, so that the Architectural Committee can evaluate the colors (as set forth in the Architectural Rules).
